About Henmans' equine & bloodstock group:

Within our rural sector team, our equine and bloodstock group include a number of specialist lawyers with many years of experience advising those involved in the equine and bloodstock industry.

We can advise on:

- Disputes concerning buying, selling, ownership and use of horses
- Agreements for the sale and use of equestrian property, including planning and development
- Personal injury, Animals Act and negligence claims
- Disputes concerning ownership and occupation of land
- Employment and corporate matters including bloodstock and syndicate agreements
- Tax and estate planning

Our lawyers understand the particular needs of those within the equine industry, having the expertise to advise confidently and knowledgeably on the specialist issues which arise.

We act for large landed estates, farmers, landowners and private individuals, charities, insurers and many rural businesses. We pride ourselves on our excellent professional relationships with other advisers and work closely with accountants and financial advisers to provide seamless advice.

For further information or to discuss any equine issues you may have, please contact Esther Stirling or Tamsin Hyland on 01865 781000.
